"The games of Life exist to raise your intelligence and aliveness.

Learn to use religions, politics, T.V and movies, yoga, educational systems, communication and media and all kinds of business and trade and whatever you think coming from the world outside, for the purpose of awakening.

Whatever happens anywhere in the Universe is known by the entire Universe because the communication is simultaneous....

If you focus on the Now, time will no longer be linear but simultaneous — past, present and future will co-exist.

In this frame of conscious awareness you create the New World — new types of light-based technologies, new ways of communication, new forms of community-living, new systems of government, new resources, new economy, new financial and educational systems. And all overwhelmed by joy, equality, harmony and beauty."

BA (Hons) Organisational Communication with Media Management

"When you communicate (with your superior), it is not the advice you receive that will make things happen, but the elimination of your presumption and false ideas that eliminates all obstacles.

*Communication is communion, integrity.
One day all organisations will teach the Art of Dreaming - the principles of self-improvement and inner integrity to enable their people, managers and employees, to become advanced beings.*

The world of business has to realize that real, financial expansion comes out of quality, and declines rapidly when quality is missing."

We strongly believe that the sustenance of an enterprise lies not only in the workings of its systems -these relying among other things on smooth internal and external communication, but in the propagation and expansion of its values and integrity. In today's ever- expanding multi-national market, it is only with the support of rigorous communication structures and practices that an enterprise, can expect to not only sustain itself, but grow and flourish.

“The economics to come – industries and corporate enterprises should teach the Art of Dreaming – the principles of self-improvement and inner integrity to enable their people, managers and employees, to become advanced beings. The world of business has to realize that real, financial expansion comes out of quality, and declines rapidly when quality is missing.”
